Overview and interpretation

Overview

- The questionnaire was completed by the GUS cohort member at age 19-20.
- The approach at sweep 12 was a sequential web-CAPI. This means that cohort members were first invited to complete the survey online. Those who did not complete online within a few weeks were then offered to complete the survey face-to-face with an interviewer (CAPI). The CAPI questionnaire had a self-completion section for sensitive questions (CASI).
- Max intended length of the questionnaire was 45 minutes in either mode.

Interpreting the questionnaire

- Question names are given in bold
- Routing instructions are given in {curly brackets} above or alongside each question.
- Statements in {} indicate where a 'textfill' of some kind is used in the program. ^ also indicates a textfill being used – these are defined in the qnre
- Where details differ across web and CAPI modes this is indicated using textfills and specifying e.g. {IF CAPI: "XXX"}. For CAPI, interviewer instructions are in capitals – as a rule, text in capitals are not read out by the interviewer.
- In CAPI fieldwork, showcards displaying answer options were used.
- 'Don't know' and 'refused' responses were permissible at almost every question, but in most cases did not appear as an up-front option in the web survey or on showcards.
- The instruction CODE ALL THAT APPLY/Please select all that apply indicates a multi-coded question. If this is not stated then a single code only applied.
- Signals (checks) are written into the document – (H) or 'HARD CHECK' indicates a hard check on an error that needs to be amended before proceeding with the questionnaire. (S) or 'SOFT CHECK' indicates a soft-check which can be suppressed without requiring amendments.

Help screen text:

Data linkage is the process of adding together different types of information about individuals from different sources. To improve the information we hold on GUS, we link your survey answers with selected administrative data. This means we can reduce the number of questions we need ask you.

Linking the information you give us in the interview with this other information helps us build a more complete picture of your life, and makes the information you share even more useful. This helps the Scottish Government and others develop better policies for young adults.

SQA is the Scottish Qualifications Authority. They are the organisation who develop educational qualifications, set exams and award certificates. They hold information about the qualifications you’ve received. These might be National 4s or National 5s, Highers, SVQs, SQA awards or apprenticeships. Information on your qualifications – that is, the subject and the grade - would be added to your GUS data.

Skills Development Scotland are a public body who provide careers information, advice and guidance, and work-based training programmes. They hold information about what young people go on to do when they leave school – for example whether they are in work or training, at college, university or doing something else. Information from SDS about what you are doing after school would be added to your GUS data.

LEO brings together information from universities, colleges, DWP and HMRC to support research on the different pathways young people take after school. Combined with data from GUS, we could use this to answer important questions like how childhood circumstances affect income and employment in later life.

The process

We securely send a small amount of the information we hold about you that can be used to identify your records – such as your name, address and date of birth - to a trusted, third party, usually a government department separate from the study and the other organization who hold your administrative data (such as SQA or SDS). We don't send your survey answers. The other organisation (such as SQA or SDS) will also do this from the information they hold. The trusted third party uses this information to match your GUS record with the organisation record. They then add an anonymous ID number and delete your personal data, such as your name and address. The anonymous ID number is then used to combine your survey data and the information from the organisation. This creates a new set of anonymous data which is completely confidential, just like your survey data has always been. No one will know it's you.
